Craft: Boo Boo Bees

Make "boo boo bees" to keep in the freezer. They will be there to bring comfort to the kids' bumps and bruises! Have the kids fill the foot of their tube sock with rice, almost up to the heel. Shake it down so you have a nice, fat bee. This will take several cups of rice. It may help to use funnels. You can use paper rolled into a cone shape, or cut the bottom out of a paper cup. This will make it easier for the kids to pour the rice. Help them tie a tight knot in the sock, right up next to the rice. Leave the rest of the sock for this stinger. If desired, tie a series of knots in this extra piece to stiffen it and to make extra sure the rice stays in the sock. Now let the kids use permanent markers or fabric markers to decorate their bee. You could also use tacky glue and felt pieces. If your kids are older and your group small enough, they may enjoy using embroidery floss to sew fabric onto their bee. Store the finished bees in the freezer. If the sock gets dirty or starts to smell, untie the knot and replace the rice.
